Sabir Hussain : Battlefields and Paradise before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Battlefields and Paradise:

0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Three Stars By John E An interesting travel diary sort of book.

Delhi, Pathankot, Jammu, Rajouri, Srinagar, Sonamarg, Drass, Kargil, Leh, Hunder . . . Turtuk After a long stint as a journalist with, amongst others, India's foremost English news channel Times Now, Sabir Hussain decided to chase his life's most cherished dream. At forty-eight, he picked up his ordinary motorcycle and began the long journey from Delhi to Turtuk in Ladakh, India's northernmost point on the LoC. Travelling alone on a shoestring budget on the historic Mughal Road, without any fancy travel accoutrement, living in nondescript hotels and the homes of friends, this is the passionate saga of a man who will take you on the ride of your life as he traverses 3,200 kms on breathtaking and often dangerous roads. This story of a journalist-traveller, who succeeded in riding to places where few dare to go, also opens a door into the politics of Kashmir, straight from the mouths of ordinary people with extraordinary resilience and hope in their hearts. Battlefields Paradise makes you feel that the most difficult things in life are simply the least complicated. . .
